MARK 6:2

FROM OUR PASTOR

Fr. Matthew Kuhn

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ Jesus,

It is good to be with you! I find great joy in the coincidence of returning to the place of my birth on the very Sunday when we hear Jesus say: "A prophet is not without honor except in his native place and among his own kin and in his own house."

Boy, am I glad I'm not a prophet. I admit, I am a little nervous about preaching to my own extended family.

As a priest, I necessarily have to say things you may not want to hear. We can all feel the pressure to avoid saying prophetic things in order to avoid offending others, but we also have a responsibility to help each other grow in virtue and in love.

Please know that the first person I am targeting in my preaching is me. I know my own faults, and most of what I preach is what I am hearing God say to my heart in prayer. The priest is not better than anyone else, but he is held to a higher standard. This is a good and necessary thing! I thank God for the honesty of children every time I hear one of your little ones repeating my own lesson back at me. It is good for my humility and for my confidence. If God can speak to me through them, then surely He can speak to them through me.

May God grant us all the wisdom to recognize His voice and the courage to speak for Him to others.

Peace in Christ,

Father Matthew Kuhn

Thank you from the bottom of my heart for celebrating my final liturgies here at St. Mary's and for the wonderful retirement gathering at Carlos Creek Winery. I send a special thank you to the planning committee and the staff of Carlos Creek. It was a wonderful day. I have received a ton of cards....thank you. I plan to respond to every one of them. (Remember, my phone calendar says "No planned events today." That is a very strange feeling. But I am sure that I will be filling in some time slots.)

I wish you all well and thank you. I welcome Fr. Matthew... May you be blest in your ministry here. Blessings to all of you.

ABOUT LIFE

Justice, Peace and Integrity of Creation Committee (JPIC) -

The False God of Absolute Freedom by Fr. Billy Swan (2019)

Five key points about the nature of freedom:

1. Modernity celebrates human freedom and seeks to protect its integrity. Faith in Christ is not the enemy of this freedom but the guarantor of true freedom.
2. Much of the alleged conflict between human freedom and faith stems from how we understand the human person to be. We humans are beings in relationship. Therefore, our freedom accommodates some degree of commitment to others and self-sacrifice.
3. Freedom is conditioned by what freedom chooses. Our choices either enhance freedom or diminish it. True freedom is not arbitrarily doing what we want but delighting in choosing the good and the true.
4. Our freedom is not destroyed or replaced by God's freedom. It is about aligning our will with God's will.
5. The pursuit of absolute freedom ends up destroying freedom. Insistence on absolute freedom leads to conflict and violence.

COMMUNITY NEWS

A special THANK YOU to Barb Friedrichs who has coordinated Coffee & Rolls for the past several years. Barb created a team and schedule to provide our parishioners fellowship after each Sunday Mass. With donuts and rolls donated by Roers Family Bakery, along with fruit, coffee and juice served by parishioners, groups and/or committees made it a great way to start the day. Barb recently retired and is looking to new ventures both within the church and with her family. We wish her well and thank her for her years of service and creating a team of wonderful people to continue in her place.

We are looking for someone to take over and coordinate this ministry. Barb has organized notes and a team of people to support you. If you are interested, please call the parish office 763-5781.

FAITH FORMATION

stmreled@stmaryalexandria.org | 320-763-9202

YOUTH FAITH FORMATION

Our Middle School students experienced their first mission trip in June. They traveled up to Duluth where they served at a youth center and a food shelf, and assisted in cleaning up the fairgrounds, Wade Stadium, and a few local parks. They also helped John in moving out of his home of 53 years. I think he especially enjoyed the company! The students also had the opportunity to explore all that Duluth has to offer and were excited to meet Fr Mike Schmitz when we made time for Mass at the Newman Center! Stewardship

During the summer, we might be tempted to let our participation in parish life slip just a little. I hope that we can all resist that temptation. We should be about the ordinary business of the Christian, growing in the knowledge and love of the Lord, sharing our lives with one another, sharing our faith with those who have no faith, and reaching out to the poor and needy who are God's special friends. That's a pretty large order, I have to admit, but I'd like to make three simple suggestions about ways you can be about God's business this summer:

✚ First, we can continue in the habit of faithful attendance at worship, and you can invite some of your friends and neighbors to come with you.

I suspect that each of you has a friend who takes a vacation from worshipping God. Help that friend to see that God hasn't gone on vacation; invite him or her to worship with you some Sunday.

✚ Second, we can use some of our summer leisure time for Christian study.

There are probably a large number of good books in your local library, and not all of them are heavy reading. Many of them are simply the stories of ordinary Christians like you and me. You might also want to consider getting together with a few others to study part of the Bible.

✚ Third, we use the summer as a time to try out new ways to serve others.

I suspect that there are many of us who have skills which we've never used in Christian service, perhaps because we fear that we wouldn't really do a good enough job to please people or that we might get stuck in a particular form of ministry forever. What better time than the summer to try out a new form of ministry as an adventure in faith. If you have an idea about some form of ministry you'd like to take on for a while this summer, share your idea with others. Whether it's singing in the choir, reading lessons on Sundays, visiting the sick or the elderly, or any other form of ministry, try it out this summer.

Stewardship and Evangelization go hand in hand, for stewardship is a sharing of the good news. Our response in time, talent and treasure is a continuing announcement that echoes the good news proclaimed by angels long ago.

They'll Wait for Me!

Some years ago, my church put on a Passion play. It was much more ambitious than our usual Easter programs. Almost every member of the congregation was involved in one way or another. I volunteered to help with the refreshments. I'd anticipated pouring punch, serving cookies, and so forth. However, I was soon confronted with our church's ancient (and huge) coffee maker. I had no idea how to work it. Directions were nowhere to be found. The ladies who normally used it were all cast members, and couldn't help me, worried that they might miss their entrance.

So I stood there, terrified that I was going to have to explain why there was no coffee. Then, a man cheerfully asked if he could help. He managed to figure out how to operate it. I was grateful, but worried. Seeing his costume, I knew he must be in the cast. I thanked him, but remembering what the others had said, I asked, "Aren't you worried you'll miss your entrance?"

"Oh, they'll wait for me," he said calmly, and strode off. They did. Later, I discovered he had the part of Jesus.

Yes, people in a play will wait for an actor portraying Christ. But how often do we wait upon Jesus, performing the good works that he commands? Reaching out to the community, whether with a Passion play, a food pantry, a school supplies drive, or simply inviting a new neighbor to church, is something we shouldn't wait to do.

The stewardship of service is at least as important as checkbook stewardship, but sometimes it is easier to write a check than to take the trouble to explore what you can do for your church and community with your "hidden assets" ... your skills and talents.

What's In Your Hand

*What's in your hand that God can use
To bring him glory and praise?
When you offer it to the Lord
He'll use it in special ways.*

*Moses offered a shepherd's staff
God used to part the sea,
And when he struck the desert rock,
Water poured out freely.*

*Your hand may hold an instrument
That you can play and sing
A song of praise and worship
To glorify the King.*

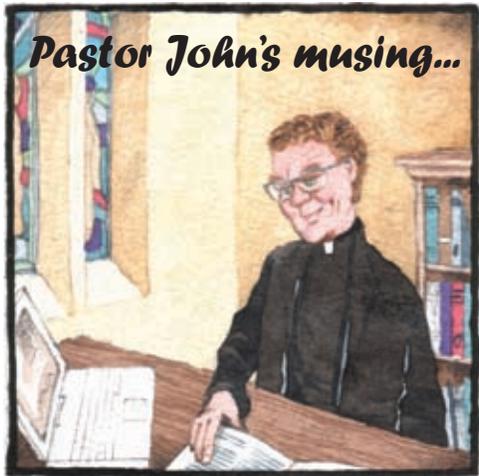

*Or in your hand may rest a pen
That you can use to write
Words of great encouragement
To bring a friend God's light.*

*Maybe you hold a piece of bread,
A cup of water, too.
When they're offered to one in need,
God will bless through you.*

*Though you may look down at your hands
And nothing is found there,
When you lift them to the Lord,
He'll hear and answer prayer.*

*You may think my gift's too small,
But it matters not the size.
When God looks at your open hand,
Your gift he multiplies.*

The Greek writer, Nikos Kazantzakis, once told the story of an old monk who lived on one of the islands off of Greece. One day a young man who was rock climbing on the island came across the monk and began conversing with him.

When the young man felt better acquainted, he asked the monk if he still wrestled with the devil. "Oh no," the devout old fellow said, "not anymore. I have grown old and the devil has grown old with me. He no longer has my strength. Now I wrestle with God. "With God?" the young man queried, "you wrestle with God? Well, let me ask: Do you hope to win?"

The answer the monk gave is worthy of remembering. "Win?" he asked, "Do I hope to win? Heavens no, I hope to lose!"

If that seems puzzling, think more about it. And think about Jesus' statement to the effect that to lose to Him was in fact to win. Christ's precise words were: "He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life for my sake will find it." (Matthew 10:39)

Upon consideration, it all makes perfect sense. To whom do we owe our existence anyway? To whom are we therefore ultimately obligated? Whose providential care ministers to us every second of our lives? And who will provide for us when our earth journey is over?

The grateful and wise person will say something like- "All that I am and all that I have of any consequence comes from God. Therefore I offer my life to God. Willingly, I lose my life to God. For God alone knows how to best use my life and whatever has come with it: my brain—power, my talent, my strength, my time allotted, and the resources God has allowed me to have for the days, whether few or many, I will have here on earth. So be it."

As part of their total stewardship, Christians are concerned about the dedication of their talents. They regard personal abilities to work and to lead as another evidence of God's loving care.

In a spirit of consecration, they desire to have those talents utilized in business, in the home, in church, in such a manner that they will make a contribution to the Kingdom of God on earth. These priorities are important to them, including during the summer months.

How often do we wait upon Jesus, performing the good works that he commands?

How Much is Enough?

Teacher, what good thing must I do to get eternal life?”
“Go sell your possessions and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me.”

“When the young man heard this, he went away sad, because he had great wealth.”

This Bible story teaches that we all worship something, and it becomes our everything. The rich man went away sad because he worshipped money. He held on so tight that he missed out on an adventure with Christ. He was so close, yet so far.

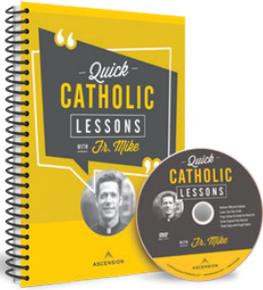

When we give freely of our money to the stewardship of our local church, we not only help build the Kingdom of God, we also affirm that God has first place in our hearts. The Bible says, “Whoever loves money never has enough” (Ecclesiastes 5:10). It’s o.k. to enjoy God’s blessings. But one of the reasons God gives us gifts is so we can share with others and help bless those in need. We can hang on tightly and walk away sad, or surrender everything over to his Lordship and ultimately become co-workers with Christ in the building of his Kingdom, right here and now.

ADULT FAITH FORMATION

SUMMER 2021 WOMEN'S BIBLE STUDY

Drawing from Father Mike Schmitz's "Quick Catholic Lessons", we will explore just a few core questions about Catholicism and tough issues in Christian discipleship. This study will meet for five Saturdays beginning July 10th until August 7th from 8:00 to 10:00 AM in the Lighthouse (building in the north church parking lot).

This is a perfect summer study with no homework (nor cost). It is not necessary to commit to all or even most sessions; attend when you are able. Please join us!

LITURGICAL AND MUSICAL NOTES

A Prophet—Except In Your Own Home

Jesus returns home to preach in the synagogue in which he grew up. The people were astonished at his wisdom. Word had already reached them concerning all of the miracles he had accomplished. But rather than rejoicing in his homecoming, they took offense.

This Gospel speaks to just about every parent of an adolescent who ever lived. In Jesus' words, "Prophets are not without honor, except...among their own kin, and in their own house" (Mark 6:4). Like Jesus, we too experience the hurt and frustration of not being heard by the people closest to us—the very people we most want to influence. At one point my husband and I had four teenagers living in our house at the same time. I am sure we gave just about every speech given to an adolescent during that time frame. They were always very respectful, they seemed to listen, but sometimes you could just tell by their stance or the look on their face that our words of wisdom were being heavily filtered.

I remember sitting with one of our sons following a family wedding when he and his cousins had absconded with a six-pack of beer. I can still hear this handsome young man (who stood about five-foot-one at the time) say to his father and me, "I know most fourteen-year-olds aren't old enough to drink beer, but I'm a lot more mature."

Years later, I found a picture from that wedding showing my son and his cousins standing with the groom. I asked my even more handsome, six-foot son if he remembered the wedding and the incident with the beer. He just shook his head and said, "Oh yeah, I was pretty dumb back then." So have faith. More often than not that know-it-all teen with the rolling eyes will usually come around to appreciate your wisdom. I wonder if the same thing happened to the folks in Jesus' hometown. For their sake, I hope so.

FAMILY RESPONSE

Practice active listening. Ask one person in the family to talk about a problem they are having at home, school or work with which they would like help. Everyone else is to listen without interrupting. They may then ask questions to clarify what the person has said. When they are done listening, they can make suggestions. The person who was speaking tells each person how well he or she listened by giving him or her a grade of one to five. Five means you are a really good listener.

PERSONAL RESPONSE

Are you a good listener? What can you do to become better at this important skill? What do you want to remember from last week?

DRY EYE

Dry eye occurs when there are problems with the production or consistency of tears.

COMMON SYMPTOMS

Stinging or burning

Excessive tearing

Sandy or gritty sensation

Episodes of blurred vision

Redness

COMMON RISK FACTORS

Side effects from certain medications

Hormonal changes

Age

Auto-immune disorders, such as arthritis

Dry environment

WHO GETS DRY EYE?

Nearly 5 MILLION AMERICANS 50 years of age and older are estimated to have dry eye. Of these, more than 3 MILLION ARE WOMEN. Dry eye is particularly common after menopause.

Dry eye may be increasing among young people due to extended use of computers, tablets, and smart phones.

IS IT MORE THAN AN IRRITATION?

It can be. Although dry eye is often a temporary annoyance, some people can develop chronic dry eye, which can scar the cornea and cause vision loss.

CAN IT BE TREATED?

Treatments include topical lubricants and prescription drops that enhance the eye's tear film.

For more information, visit www.nei.nih.gov/health/dryeye.
